合 計

John: Ryo, this is the rugby stadium in our city.

Ryo: What a big stadium! There are so many people.

John: Yes. In New Zealand, rugby is very popular and people have a lot of *respect for the players. Today they'll have an international game. We want our team to win.

Ryo: I see. This is my first time to see a rugby game. So I'm very [①].

John: I hope you enjoy this game. It'll start soon.

Ryo: John, the players of New Zealand are dancing and saying something *loudly. What's that?

John: It's the *haka. The players do it before international games.

Ryo: It's so *wild. I can feel their great power. Why do the players do it?

John: They do it to show their power.

Ryo: Oh, I see. They look strong.

John: They also show their respect and thanks to the other team.

Ryo: Oh, that is really great. Do other people in New Zealand do the haka, too?

John: Yes. For example, we do it when we welcome important people visiting New Zealand from other countries. Are you [②] the haka?

Ryo: Yes, I am. Can you show me how to do the haka later?

John: Sure. Ryo, the game has just started. Let's enjoy the game together.

Ryo: OK, John.

4 次は、アメリカ人科学者(scientist)のディーピカ・クルップ (Deepika Kurup) さんについての英文です。これを読んで、(1)~(5) の問いに答えなさい。

Deepika is a young American scientist. She is only eighteen years old now. She made a *device to clean water.

Deepika liked science very much when she was a child. She always asked her father and mother questions about things around her, and enjoyed reading stories of famous scientists.

When she was fourteen years old, Deepika and her family visited India. She was surprised to see children there. They were drinking water from a *dirty *pool. The water was so dirty that she couldn't *put her hands into it. She knew that many people in the world became sick because []. She thought she had to do something about this water problem. She believed that science had the power to change the world.

Deepika started to study about *ways to clean water after the visit. She learned that there were some ways to do that, but they were difficult and much money was needed. She wanted to make safe water in many places around the world. She needed to find a very easy way.

She studied very hard for three months. She read many books, used the Internet, and talked with scientists every day. She learned many things, and *tested them many times at home.

Her idea was to put water into a bottle with some kinds of *metals in it, and put the bottle under the sun. She thought she could use the sun, and kill *bacteria in the water. With her idea, everyone was able to get safe water very easily, and use the same device many times. Many people liked her idea.

Deepika got many prizes, but she didn't stop studying about ways to clean water. She thought, "I can help more people in the world if I improve my device." In the end, it took three years for her to finish her new device.

Now she is studying at a university. She wants to know more things about the world. She says that science gives us many chances to find new things, and each new idea comes with so many questions. Science is really her life.
